

Loch Duart – The Toxic Salmon Company

FishyLeaks reveals that Loch Duart is a company which used toxic chemicals 282 times at sites across Scotland during the four year period (2008-2011) – including Deltamethrin (100 times), Cypermethrin (71 times), Azamethiphos (64 times), Emamectin benzoate (41 times) and Teflubenzuron (6 times).

Loch Duart markets itself as the ‘Sustainable Salmon Company’ and proudly boasts on their web-site that it is a company which uses no growth promoters, antibiotics or antifoulants. One of Loch Duart’s clients claims that “they don’t use any chemicals”.

However, according to data supplied by the Scottish Environment Protection Agency, Loch Duart was the fifth largest user of toxic chemicals in Scottish salmon farming using a total of 89350.988g in the period 2008-2011 – including 53490g of the organophosphate Azamethiphos; 23555.1g of the insecticide Teflubenzuron, 5949.538g of the pesticide Emamectin benzoate; 3565.5g of the lobster-killing Cypermethrin; and 2790.85g of the bath treatment Deltamethrin.

Loch Duart was the most frequent user of the lobster-killing chemical Teflubenzuron with half of all cases including use in Loch Laxford Special Area of Conservation and Badcall Bay.

Read the all data enclosed below and online via FishyLeaks

All five toxic chemicals have been shown to kill lobsters and other shellfish. Scientific research has shown that Azamethiphos, Teflubenzuron and Cypermethrin are lethal to lobsters and Emamectin benzoate can induce premature moulting in lobsters. Deltamethrin is also lethal to both shrimp and lobsters. Read more via 'Silent Spring of the Sea'.

Loch Duart uses so many chemicals that containers are piled up outside their head office in Badcall Bay on the West coast of Scotland.

Hidden behind Loch Duart's head office – on the shore of Badcall Bay - are more chemical containers:

Each time Loch Duart uses a toxic chemical it sends a notification letter to the Scottish Environment Protection Agency – here’s one for Azamethiphos use in January 2012 in Badcall Bay:

Loch Duart operates four sites in Loch Laxford Special Area of Conservation – which is supposed to be protected via the European Union’s Habitats Directive.

GAAIA filed a complaint to the European Commission in August 2012 regarding discharges of toxic chemicals into Special Areas of Conservation including into Loch Laxford by Loch Duart.

More background on Loch Duart’s use of toxic chemicals compared to other companies is available online here

Make no mistake: Loch Duart, managed by Nick Joy, will bring nothing but pain to Eastern Canada. Loch Duart has clearly fouled their own nest in Scotland and are struggling with sea lice problems and chemical resistance. Loch Duart is bad news.
